

Hello! Has there been any consideration to changing the 2 meter and 70 centimeter bands within the Amateur Radio Service (Service HA) to allow people that have GMRS licenses to use those frequencies?

I currently hold a GMRS license and have no intention of becoming a radio technician nor talking outside of those bands around the World. I feel that having to take an examination for an HA license is senseless since the reception and transmission range of those two bands is very similar to the GMRS band. Thanks very much for considering my request.
